JOHN MONTGOMERY, Jr., was born in what is now Webster County, Ky., October 4, 1828, a son of Samuel and Rebecca B. (Givens) Montgomery, natives of Kentucky, the former of Franklin and the latter of Lincoln County, and of Irish descent. When six or seven years old, about 1804, Samuel Montgomery removed with the parents to Henderson County, Ky. After a very few years the family came to what is now Webster County, where his father, John Montgomery, Sr., bought wild land near Providence and improved a farm, upon which he resided until his death. He served under Gen. Anthony Wayne during the Indian wars in Indiana, and was wounded in the left arm in one of those engagements. Samuel received his early education and was also married in Webster County. After attaining his majority he bought wild land adjoining the old homestead, and improved a farm upon which he resided until his death in 1862, in his sixty-seventh year. He engaged in flat-boating on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers for several years; shipping live stock, tobacco and produce to New Orleans. In the spring of 1815, just after the battle of New Orleans, he made a trip down the rivers with a flat-boat to New Orleans, and accomplished the return journey on foot in sixteen days. He and wife were life long members of the United Baptist church. Our subject was employed on his father's farm until he attained his majority, and in April, 1852,

THOMAS G. MONTGOMERY was born June 26, 1831, in what is now Webster County, Ky., but was then a part of Hopkins County, and is a son of Samuel and Rebecca B. (Givens) Montgomery. He was employed on his father's farm until he attained his majority, after which he bought a partially improved farm, a part of his grandfather's old farm, upon which he still resides, and to which he has continued to add from time to time, now owning well improved farms amounting, in the aggregate, to 400 acres. For the past twenty-two years he has been quite extensively [sic] engaged in the live stock trade, and during the war he was engaged in the tobacco business to some extent. In 1857, in company with a younger brother, he manufactured a flat-boat load of staves, and ran them down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to New Orleans in the following year. Mr. Montgomery was never sued in his life, neither has he ever been a witness or grand juror. He was married, November 31, 1853, to Miss Martha E. Hunter, a native of the town of Providence.
